Located in Oak Creek, Sowing4hope is a non-profit, urban farm where harvested fruits and vegetables provide healthy food supplies for the impoverished in the community.

Working with established hunger relief organizations, their mission is to provide, free of charge, nutritious, organically grown fruits and vegetables to supplement the typical food staples given to local food pantries. Alongside the distribution of fresh produce to the food insecure, Sowing4hope serves to provide education, training, and volunteer opportunities designed to empower others to do likewise in their local neighborhoods and communities. ## SOCIETÀ SANTA ROSALIA di Santo Stefano Quisquina, Inc.

La Societá Santa Rosalia di Santo Stefano Quisquina (Santa Rosalia Society) is a non-profit, charitable organization that promotes preservation of cultural traditions, family and giving back to the community.

The society was founded on March 19, 2005 in Milwaukee, WI by direct descendants of Santo Stefano Quisquina, a town in the province of Agrigento in Sicily, Italy. The patron saint of this town is Santa Rosalia, after which this society is named. Many of the founders and members of this group left family and the lives they knew behind in search of opportunity in the United States. Their culture, customs, spirit of selflessness and generosity, however, did not get left behind. These will be preserved in the Milwaukee community though the existence of this organization for future generations so that roots may always be respected, appreciated and remembered.

Application for membership is open to all who would like to share in this purpose.
